

LOVE

Dear person,

Be well aware that nothing is as important as love. What is meant here is, of course, unconditional love! Look for this in your life and know that every person carries the loving divine spark inside.

As soon as, by working on yourself, you expand your awareness, you will also gain an insight into the other divine gifts to be found within yourself. Accordingly, please make an effort to unveil these treasures in order that you may increasingly find a home within yourself.

On the basis of this, you can also be there for other people, for mother Earth, and so on. In this way you can and will be a light that will radiate to inspire others, leading to a chain reaction with fantastic results for every being possessed of a soul.

It is hoped that this book may be an effective first step for working on yourself and/or for persisting in doing so. With all of this, be intensely aware of our unflagging, unconditional love and compassion for you.

Preface

Dear reader,

I know the author of this book as a modest man with whom I've discussed a range of subjects over the years. I soon concluded that he is a special and hospitable man. What I find uncommon in him is that he will look upon and discuss even people's darkest sides and behaviours without judging.

His vision of people doing their best with the abilities and awareness they have at any given moment continues to serve as a fine reminder. It is brave of him to put his modesty aside so that other people do not miss out on what is being passed on to him. In other words, he has the courage of his convictions for the benefit of the greater good. Unconditional love runs as a common thread through each encounter and each topic of conversation. His explanations are valuable.

Undoubtedly, this book, entitled Love and written through automatic writing (channelling), will discuss this kind of love extensively.

Love makes us experience all emotions that exist, positive as well as negative. It teaches us about our own desires, emotions, thoughts and actions. But unconditional love..... teaches us to see the world, our fellow human beings and our experiences differently. Reading this book may help you see things in a different light. Sunlight, to be sure, although its source may appear to you in different forms, such as God, Allah, Buddha, and so on. Whatever your source or beliefs, open yourself to the invitation to feel the rays of unconditional love, and let your heart be warmed.

Warm regards,

Céline Stevens

I am very grateful to have been given the opportunity, having previously written the book Truth, to ‘write’ this book, Love, in the same way. I received the gifts needed for doing so through automatic writing.

With the exception of the table of contents, colophon, introduction by the ‘author’, preface, acknowledgements and the text on the back cover, everything here ‘written’ by me has come about through channelling.

I thank Céline, Hermien, Odwin and Teunie, who have helped me tremendously with this task. I warmly remember their loving contributions to this book.

They lent an attentive ear and provided various facilities. Their interest, mental support and so on have been of great value to me.

Céline was kind enough to write the preface, for which I am very grateful.

I also thank Hermien, who surprised and pleased me immensely with the cover illustration, which goes very well with the book’s title.

Odwin built a new website for me on which people can find information about ‘my’ books. I wish to take the opportunity to thank him for this.

I also have a great debt of gratitude to Teunie, who was willing, having already corrected the previous book, Love, to correct the Dutch version of this book. In addition, she supported me with advice and practical assistance.

The fact that this book can now serve a much wider readership is owed to the skilled translation into English. Many thanks, Chris!

In a book I once read the following fine quote about love: 'Everything is only the flip side of the coin which on the other side bears love.'

Lastly, I wish to express how privileged I feel, having 'written' the book Truth, to have been given the ability to 'write' this book as well.

The 'author',

Introduction by the ‘author’

The following segment describes how I was allowed to ‘write’ this book and what came before. The experiences in my life have led up to this. One is usually not immediately aware of the meaning of one’s life and is really more or less ‘surviving’. With help, it was now possible to really ‘live’. I am intensely grateful for everything that got me this far. Less pleasant experiences in my early years put me in survival mode.

Unconsciously, I spent a large part of my life proving myself over and over. A lack of self-confidence and self-worth were at the root of this. To all appearances, my life otherwise took its course like everyone else’s. I met a sweet girl who became my wife; we had three children. About fifteen years ago I underwent therapy, which made it clear why I was ‘surviving’. It also became clear what unintended effects this had on myself and on my loved ones.

Due to the walls I had unwittingly built around myself, I was not sufficiently in touch with myself and my love. I realised things could not go on this way, all the more so because at one point I had become fully estranged from myself. Breaking down my protective walls was not easy. After all, knowing their cause does not change negative beliefs in the subconscious. I went on a search and discovered different types of alternative healing, some of which I learned for myself. By applying these forms of healing I eventually managed to change, remove, allow to be removed and/or let go of my unconscious beliefs. I slowly started doing better. My long-standing marriage ended a number of years ago; I still look back on this period with gratitude.

In the past twenty years I suffered from a chronic illness that weakened my overall defences. As a result of this illness, among other things, my nervous system was damaged. The illness has since been cured, but due to my damaged nerve system I still face physical restrictions.

In 2013 I consulted an ‘alternative’ healer in the hope that he could do something about the partial failure of my nervous system. In his healing sessions he was supported by a female healing entity from the so-called other world. During my second consultation with him he told me I would be doing the same thing as he, and the same female healing entity who was helping him would be helping me.

I was already able to help other people with the alternative therapies I had learned, but I had definitely not counted on this. A different female healing entity was already ‘working’ on me at the time. Everything gained momentum miraculously from that point on. I was, and am being, prepared to help other people by healing them and so on. This turns out to be my destiny, which is comprehensive and leaves little or no space for anything else. Preparations for my destiny required, and continue to require, a considerable effort, because I am being worked on day and night. At one point, I was even allowed and able to talk to the female healing entity that was guiding me. Things became more wondrous still: one day, Father/Mother God spoke to me. Miracles like this just kept happening, and still do. After the initial healing entity, another female entity and then a male entity guided me. For a long time now, Jesus has provided this guidance. Often I can barely comprehend these miracles, or they are entirely beyond me.

Although I had already worked on myself, there turned out to be a number of blockages left from previous lives. These prevented me from being as pure a channel as possible for healing and the like. This has posed a number of challenges. On several occasions, I could not continue on my way without help from the so-called other world.

I was able to make a little progress each time, relying on the unconditional love and compassion of Father/Mother God, Jesus and my guides of that moment. In this way, I have been privileged to experience, very intensely, a great amount of unconditional love and compassion. A lot of information, wisdom and other gifts were shared with me. In the course of this it also became clear that a lot of what is being said about Father/Mother God, Jesus and others in the so-called other world is wrong or distorted. The compassion and unconditional love I have been experiencing, and the knowledge that we humans are always being looked after, plays a central part and provides comfort and encouragement.

In short, all of the above-mentioned led me to ask if it might be possible to put these things on paper through automatic writing.

As you can see, my request was received positively. What's more, this is the second book I have been able to 'write' in this way. The start of each chapter of this book indicates who is speaking in the chapter.

Introduction by Father/Mother God and others

Dear person: in the previous book, Truth, the same ‘author’ has repeatedly described the essential importance of LOVE. When we speak of love, we mean unconditional love and compassion. This is permanently what keeps everything going and will cause everything to change for the better. On this subject we already had occasion to speak in the book Truth.

The moment there is only unconditional love outside of the so-called other world, we have no need to look at all of the other things currently still going on in the world. Unconditional love and compassion being all-encompassing, there will be no more negative opposites. No single action undertaken or refrained from on the basis of unconditional love and compassion can possibly have negative consequences.

Unfortunately, the opposite is still a reality at the moment. Outside of the so-called other world, and we will restrict ourselves mainly to earth, there is still conditional love, or even a partial or complete lack of it, with many negative consequences. Although this book is not about love exclusively, we believe that the title we have chosen, ‘LOVE’, is certainly appropriate. After all, a lack of unconditional love and compassion (with exceptions) leads to action or inaction which, in the best scenario, is informed by conditional love. The latter can more or less be described as a kind of agreement to love on the condition that the receiving party meets sky-high expectations.

Such expectations may include: taking care of the other, resolving loneliness, making the other happy, self-sacrifice, and so on. However, as soon as the idealising effect of being in love wears off and tolerance fades, problems often arise. This is of course understandable, as people do not know, or barely know, who they themselves are and will not be in any position to accept themselves, or can do so partially at best. People in this situation may also still largely lack self-worth and self-confidence – but no matter, the other person will simply solve this, right?

Dear person, it is no mystery why many relationships break down prematurely. You cannot give to another that which you have not yet mastered yourself. It will be clear, or so we assume, that where in this book we speak of love we mean unconditional love; the kind of love found in the so-called other world. If there were enough nearly unconditional love on earth, important conditions for a transformation from the third to the fifth dimension would be met. Life on earth is currently still in the third dimension. The previously mentioned book Truth by the same ‘author’ states repeatedly that the only way of getting to the fifth dimension is for large numbers of people to work on themselves in order to inspire others. As long as this is not yet the case you will inevitably have to deal with all of the consequences of the lack of compassion and nearly unconditional love.

In this situation there is only conditional love, or even a partial or complete absence of conditional love. We hope this book, Love, will foster an understanding of why things are going the way they are in your life outside of the so-called other world. We hope it will also provide you with an insight into your possibilities of changing 'for the better'.

We wish the book to inspire you with faith, hope, consolation, courage, trust and the like, as your soul will most certainly come to dwell in the so-called other world eternally. Jesus, Mother Mary and Mary Magdalene have contributed to this introduction. It will be clear that this book is intended for every person on earth. In order that you may have a good grasp of the essence of what is written here, it is recommended not to read too much in one sitting!

Chapter 1

Father/Mother God will here go into the following subjects.

Belief and unconditional love

Many people believe in me (Father/Mother God), in Jesus and in everything relating to us. There are also large numbers of people who believe in nothing. Be aware that in any case I believe in you! You are and will always remain my beloved child, whatever you do or refrain from doing in your life outside of the so-called other world.

I am not excluding even a single person from this love, although this will be hard or impossible to grasp from a human perspective. After all, when people stray even a little from what you believe to be ‘good’, you will usually be quick to judge. Indeed, your judgement will frequently be based on the Bible or similar books.

I want to eliminate a widespread misconception on this subject: neither I nor Jesus have dictated the Bible. Not everything in the Bible is wrong, but a lot unfortunately is. I will look a little more closely at a number of reasons for this. On various subjects, quite a lot of things were recorded incorrectly because of a lack of understanding or because information was passed down for so long. The worst part, however, is that a lot of true things were left out deliberately. Some definite untruths were also included in the Bible on purpose. The Bible and similar writings sadly say too little about my unconditional love and compassion and that of Jesus. Therefore, this has been preached about too little.

The Bible, similar writings and the preachings based on them say that people are condemned to die right from the start. People who do not repent and are not forgiven following their repentance are said to be lost. From the way I have been made to look in the Bible and other sources, you are in trouble. Ostensibly, if I don't forgive you, you are a lost case and bound for hell. A way out was found for this, and my son Jesus was introduced. Jesus had to die to pay for people's so-called sins. Dear person, what flawed thinking there is in all of this! Why have people not spoken and written more about my unconditional love and compassion as well as Jesus's, for these are founded in truth! Of course, neither I (Father/Mother God) nor Jesus will force you to believe the above. However, if you do want to believe in something, please believe in me and in Jesus, as we are filled with unconditional love and compassion. Be keenly aware that this is the full truth! Indeed, everything that has been written and is being preached on a basis other than my compassion and unconditional love, and Jesus's, is utterly untrue. Compassion and unconditional love are unquestionably at the centre of everything!

Any writing or preaching that deviates from this fact or obscures it is entirely false and highly undesirable. I will therefore repeat here to be absolutely clear: 'How could your soul gather all of the experiences you require if
